More FairTax Fodder:

"As long as the income tax code rewards employer-provided health insurance, the underlying forces that push up health care costs will prevail."

ROOT OF HEALTH CARE WOES LIES IN FLAWED TAX SYSTEM

Arizona M.D. Urges Patients to Support the FairTax

Excerpts from Washington Times guest editorial (1/25) by Dr. Jeffrey A. Singer, director of Maricopa County Medical Society:

"The FairTax completely eliminates the personal and corporate income tax, all Social Security and Medicare payroll taxes, self-employment taxes, the death tax, the capital gains tax, and the Internal Revenue Service. [It] puts 100 percent of the paycheck into a worker's pocket."

"The FairTax ends the tax incentives that put the employer in charge of buying health insurance. Employees, empowered by bigger paychecks, can thus purchase health insurance more suited to their individual needs and desires. Employers can still offer health insurance as a benefit. But employees can waive the benefit and purchase it personally if they wish. The FairTax puts the health care consumer back in direct control of health care; no more spending other people's money."
